It is our pleasure to present to you, on behalf of the International Psychogeriatric Association (IPA), this new webinar: Novel drug therapies in Alzheimer's and other dementia.

There is no cure for Alzheimer's Disease (AD) and other dementias, but substantial progress has been made in developing treatments that target multiple aspects of the disease process. What are the current therapies for AD, and what's in the pipeline? Two world-renowned Alzheimer's researchers will discuss the novel drug therapies to date, and drugs in development. They will discuss the rationale for immunotherapy against amyloid-beta (A $\beta$ ) as a treatment for AD, and the relevance of biomarkers.

As with all programs in the IPA Webinar Series, this presentation is intended as an educational event on topics that are timely and relevant to the field of mental health for older adults.

Prof. Myrra Vernooij-Dassen, PhD
Chair, IPA Webinar Series

Presenter: Dr. Stephen Salloway

Dr. Stephen Salloway is the founding Director of the Memory and Aging Program at Butler Hospital in Providence, Rhode Island, and the Martin M. Zucker Professor of Psychiatry and Human Behavior and Professor of Neurology at the Warren Alpert Medical School of Brown University. His research focuses on biomarker and drug development for prevention and early treatment of Alzheimer's disease (AD).

Presenter: Dr. Edo Richard

Dr. Edo Richard is a Professor of Neurology at Radboud University Medical Centre in Nijmegen and at the dept of Public and Occupational Health at Amsterdam UMC, both in The Netherlands. His research focuses on prevention of dementia from a population perspective, and he has a line of research on ethical issues in prevention and early diagnosis. He is experienced in performing large investigator-initiated randomized controlled trials.
